LETTERS and TOMATOES

A KICK IN THE CLASS

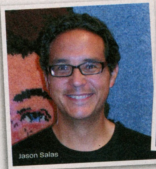

On one hot January day, my sixth grade music teacher, Ms. Burt, says that we can bring any magazine to school that can keep us quiet. (Why would you have to be quiet in music class?!) So I thought, why not bring a MAD Magazine. And while I'm reading, my music teacher grabs it and says, "MAD Magazine is stupid and has nothing to do with music." So here I am, begging you to print this letter, and prove my stupid music teacher wrong.

Joshua Lacey • Chicago, IL

Lacey in the Sky with Diamonds — Your letter had a huge effect on the entire MAD staff. After hearing what you had gone through, we knew we had to do SOMETHING to right Ms. Burt's egregious wrong! Which is why in this very issue there's a parody of the Glee poster! Now, if Ms. Burt gives you any trouble you can say, "Sure, MAD may be stupid, but it definitely has something to do with music! Ha-cha!" You don't have to say the "Ha-cha" part, but we find that it's a nice little capper! —Ed.

EMPLOYEES OF THE MONTHS

Here at MAD, we always try to encourage young talent and nurture their burgeoning careers. And if that happens to result in cheap labor for us, then so be it! A huge thanks to our wonderful Editorial Interns, Jason Salas and Jason Katzenstein, and our equally wonderful Art Interns, Michelle Dwyer and Bob Machuga! We're sure they'll go on to even bigger and better things — because, let's face it, after a MAD internship, there's really nowhere to go but up!

MAKE A DUMB WISH FOUNDATION™

I want to make a Dumb Wish for the Make a Dumb Wish Foundation™. My dumb wish is for an Xbox 360 (or at least a year's subscription to MAD). Anyway, I'm just so sick of hearing how great a friggin' Xbox is at school. Everyone at my lunch table talks about how great it is, all the new games, the online games. Oh, how I hate being left out of the conversations.

Dylan Lews • Montross, VA

Dyl, Baby, Dyl — We hope you're a student and not a teacher, because that would be really sad. Unfortunately, we can't give you an Xbox (we're still using our old ColecoVision, ourselves). It doesn't matter, though — even if we did give you an Xbox, we get the feeling that your "friends" would just find another way to leave you out of their conversations. Now, if you'll excuse us, we have to finish our game of "Burgertime." —Ed.

ENVELOPE OF THE MONTH

I have read MAD since I was a little girl. My mother was the first one who introduced me to MAD and all its craziness. Unfortunately, she suddenly passed away on July 1, 2009. She had the greatest personality and MAD was a major part of her crazy, sarcastic, open-minded and easy-going ways. If you publish this letter, many people she affected in her short 44 years on this earth will read this letter in MAD and smile. Thank you for continuing to have great MAD ideas and I dedicate my envelope of MAD art to my mother Toni and to you.

Jill Marie Tillman Webster • Conway, SC

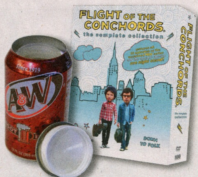

THIS IS VINYL CRAP

The website sleeveface.com, features images of people holding records in front of their faces, attempting to match the cover image. We don't know who sent in this one featuring the 1959 album, "Musically MAD," but judging from the black suit and silky tie, you're guessing it's Michael Bublé! We like this look a lot better for him!

READER ALERT

Everyone who had their letters printed are in for a whole world of awesome! You'll be receiving Flight of the Conchords: The Complete Collection courtesy of our friends at HBO Home Entertainment, a Personal Concealment Soda Can from our pals at Graham Tool Co., Inc. The Fast Five FUN FACTS ABOUT SUPREME COURT NOMINEE ELENA KAGAN

1. Write a grade school essay praising Thomas Jefferson, which Republicans plan to use to prove she's pro-slavery.
2. She actually does have judicial experience, but it's only for a pie-eating contest at a frat party.
3. Keeps claiming that she was the inspiration for Elaine on Seinfeld.
4. Insisted that her confirmation hearings wait until after her softball league's season was over.
5. As Solicitor General, she was instrumental in doing whatever it is that solicitor generals are supposed to do (though Republicans senators dispute this).

- Use pickup lines that compliment her, such as, "You're hot. Wanna go back to my grandma's apartment and do it?"
- A gentleman always orders for his lady in restaurants, even if he has to keep telling her to shut the $@#% up in front of the waiter.
- If she says she'd like to go dancing, check your local alternative freebie paper to see which strip bars in your area are holding auditions.
- If she's a little shy about revealing personal details, just wait until she goes to the restroom, and go through her purse to learn more about her.
- After you talk her into paying the bill, be sure to insist that you leave half the tip — that way you won't come off as cheap.

A MAD
PUBLIC SERVICE
ANNOUNCEMENT

WRITER: STAN EINHORN ARTIST: HERMANN MEIER

This political cartoon depicts a large, chaotic crowd of caricatures of prominent US figures, primarily from the Bush administration and associated media. The figures are shown in various states of activity, often exaggerated for satire.

- Top Left: A man in a suit (likely George W. Bush) is shown with a speech bubble stating he made the stock market go up 40% in his first year so that companies will be worth more than the federal government takes over.
- Top Center-Left: A man in a military uniform (likely Dick Cheney) is shown with a speech bubble stating he reads from teleprompters where he just repeats whatever unknown screen operators enter him to say.
- Top Center-Right: A man in a suit (likely Karl Rove) is shown with a speech bubble stating he improved the school lunch program because well-to-do kids couldn't afford it and are easier to indoctrinate with his socialist agenda.
- Middle Left: A man in a suit (likely Condoleezza Rice) is shown with a speech bubble stating she gave his Nobel Peace Prize money to charity because he hates rich people and doesn't want to become one.
- Middle Center: A woman in a pink top (likely Laura Bush) is shown with a speech bubble stating she's purposely driving Tea Party members crazy so they'll destroy America for him.
- Middle Right: A man in a suit (likely Stephen Harper) is shown with a speech bubble stating he's offering universal health care to produce more healthy workers who will work for the state.
- Bottom Left: A man in a suit (likely Mitt Romney) is shown with a speech bubble stating he goes out of his way to be personable, attractive and headle — so people won't notice all his startling resemblances to Hitler.
- Bottom Center: A man in a suit (likely Barack Obama) is shown with a speech bubble stating he's trying to reverse global warming so terrorists can hide his explosive devices under their winter coats without arousing suspicion.
- Bottom Right: A man in a suit (likely Rudy Giuliani) is shown with a speech bubble stating he advocates overturning "Don't ask, don't tell," so soldiers will spend so much time "asking and telling" that they won't pay attention when terrorists attack the country.

The crowd also includes several other figures, many of whom are holding signs or symbols:

- A sign reading "Yes to Constitution! No to Government!" is held by a man in a green cap.
- A sign reading "NOBAMA! GO BACK TO COMMUNISM KENYA" is held by a man in a brown jacket.

The background of the entire page is a promotional artwork for the game Metroid Other M. It features three main characters: on the left, a purple-armored figure (likely a Pirate Captain) in profile; in the center, Samus Aran in her green military uniform; and on the right, a large, close-up of a red helmet with a green visor that shows a pair of eyes. The background is a dark, starry space with a reddish nebula.

PRESENTS A MAD LOOK AT RACIAL PROFILING

WRITER AND ARTIST: DENIS ARACON
COLORIST: TOM LEE

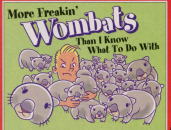

For every magical, beloved children's book like Harry Potter or The Little Engine That Could, there are a thousand books that are completely awful! Although, let's be honest here — if you could differentiate between good reading material and bad reading material, there's no way you'd be playing through MAD right now! Or well, here's...

WORST-SELLING CHILDREN'S BOOKS

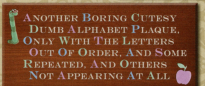

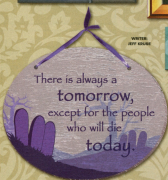

SPY VS SPY

DON'T PHRASE ME, MR. DEPT.

When you need a little help to get through a tough day, is there anything better than an uplifting wall hanging? Yes! In fact, almost ANYTHING is better than some over-simplistic, confounding "wisdom"! (Usually the only thing worse are those...

I'm going on a picnic and in my basket I'll bring A and B for Cough, Dyspnea, and E, let's see... Excitable dysfunction!

2 Try to diagnose each other

I would say it's not! Alergy? Bronchitis? or Cancer?

Yeah, but that doctor's right! After all, that chronic gets it! But it's not Cancer with a Dick of Epine Fox!

You got it? You got it?

3 Bring Monopoly and see how many games you can finish

Hey! You landed on my Beachwalk with a hotel! I win again!

Is it Tuesday yet?

4 Start taking bets on who gets called next

Mr. DeFendant?

Yes I will!

See, Mr. DeFendant, I thought because it's so late that you would be here.

5 Make up a game with the medical paraphernalia

Nice Muff!

but I know your building is craving with Therapeutic!

Gulf of Mexico Oil Spill Response.

(We're talking about this ad. What did you think we meant?)

Since the small mishap on the TransOcean Deepwater Horizon drilling rig first occurred in April, we have been committed to doing everything possible within our means to stop the catastrophic flow of bad news. And of course, the oil.

5,000 barrels of oil a day might seem like a lot. But compared to all the water in the Gulf, 19,000 barrels a day isn't that much. It's still mostly water there! And while cleaning up 25,000 barrels a day is not a simple task, we're bringing in more equipment to clean up the 45,000 to 60,000 barrels of oil that's leaking out daily. (Accurate estimates may vary.)

Rest assured that far in advance of this terrible catastrophe, BP executives had carefully considered every single operational and safety procedure available BEFORE choosing the cheapest and riskiest ways to proceed with offshore drilling. Protecting the environment was at the top of our list (when that list is viewed from the bottom up).

Our initial emergency response plan — to utilize all available fish, shellfish and aquatic birds to completely drench themselves with oil and then swim and fly it out of the Gulf did not work as well as planned. And resulted in quite a large number of dead fish, shellfish and aquatic birds. That's why BP has started working tirelessly with the U.S. Coast Guard and federal, state and local government agencies — actually, with anyone that will help us spread the blame, finger-pointing and anger as quickly as petroleum spreads unabated throughout the Gulf.

This is an enormous team effort involving more than 2,500 BP personnel — and even though 2,430 of them work in public relations and spin control, the other 70 have a heck of a lot of experience regarding oil spills, having worked for years in local BP service stations with pushbrooms and oily rags.

BP will honor all legitimate claims. We will do this by allowing any fishermen whose livelihoods have been ruined by our drilling mishap to keep all the oil they can scrape off of their boats, docks, nets and other equipment. With the price of gas what it is today, that's a pretty penny! You're welcome.

We will continue to do everything possible to keep everyone informed — simply typing "Gulf of Mexico Oil Spill" in Google, for instance, will direct you to a selection of BP-bought web pages that report exclusively on our noble and courageous efforts to clean up the water, without wasting a single page describing our sketchy safety record, employee deaths, environmental violations or obscene profits.

Remember, BP has dedicated $500 million to cover the long-term impact on marine life and coastal waters. Even if the cleanup costs are in the billions of dollars, we're STILL committed to spending $500 million.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO...

Hey, Mom and Dad!
It's me: your son!

Well, not yet. But someday soon you're gonna have a baby, and that baby's gonna grow up to be me. And one day I'm gonna build a time machine and then come back in time.
And, well, here I am.

uh... oh...
um...

Wow. Our kid
sure is ugly.

And talkative.

And that time machine

Agreed.

Oh no!
If they never have kids,
I'll never exist.
I like existing!

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

Greetings mother.
Greetings father.

I'm your son, and I've traveled back in time from the future to thank you for being such wonderful parents. I also wanted to tell you that I'm extremely

Drummer From '90s Band Farts Into Fist

The drummer from that one band (you know, they had that song on the Benny & Joon soundtrack, remember?) was caught as he was leaving a Ventura Blvd. pawnshop pulling the "hand grenade" — farting into his closed fist, then bringing up the fresh catch for a close-up snifferoo.

Now that's what we call a hot item!

Here's a picture we dug up of Jersey Shore bone-smuggler Snooki — right next to a picture of a Care Bear! When you put them next to each other like that, they sorta look the same! You're so damn welcome!

That Care Bear probably doesn't have Stage 4 Chlamydia, though.

It seems the ending here is inevitable, the Post Office releases a new "special" collection of stamps, all in a same attempt to get people excited about mailing things. In fairness, there have been some pretty decent collections, like The Simpsons and Star Wars – but there have also been a bunch that were so terrible, they never saw the light of day. We glad you never had to buy your mailing mail with any of these...

THE DARKER SIDE OF THE LIGHTER SIDE

We tamper with classic Dave Berg strips, even though nobody asked us to—especially not Dave!

The taxpayer-funded medical coverage she's getting proves that universal health care works!

But how'd she get here? Our borders truly are broken!

Look, she's got a cute little fuzzy dog. Speaking of which, cap and trade is a liberal sellout that will bankrupt us!

Maybe it's my Grade III concussion talking, but that didn't make sense.

It doesn't have to make sense! What we say just needs to be emphatic! And repeated! If you repeatedly repeat with repeated repetition, the repeating leads to repeat TV appearances repeatedly!

But it's not about you or your ideology! You're supposed to review the facts and interpret them honestly!

Listen, honey, our #1 job is keeping our #1 job! And remember, there's no measurable audience for rational consensus!

Right! We've got a nice village here. It's a lucrative circle jerk! He argues with her, and she argues with him, and he's a regular on his show, and he's a drinking buddy of his, and he's quietly married to her, and she hired her, and she anonymously quotes him! Then we all go on TV and pretend that we're reflecting the public's mood!

Stop coddlin' that illegal alien! She's been here five minutes and she's already associating with radical liberals! She'll probably pal around with that socialist wizard next! But not if I blow her head off with a fireball, roast the skin off her bones, and use what's left of her skeleton to clean the barrel of my gun!

Hey, that's violent rhetoric!

As usual, my inspirational message has been misinterpreted by the lame-stream media! Try to get this right: I said "if"!

I hate flying off so quickly...not counting from my Governor's job! But I hate makin' appearances without getting a speaking fee! Don't worry, my pretty, we'll meet again! Hey! I really CAN see Russia from up here!

That's exactly the kind of idiotic talk that's ruining our country! I'm not going home until I can meet someone who's above petty politics. Isn't there a common path we can all walk together as Americans?
