SPOT THAT PLUG 2

Here's a fascinating TV game in which you figure out who's getting the ol' payola. Internal Revenue Agents should find it fun.

NBC VS CBS 9

When NBC and CBS meet in a baseball game, they fare like on TV, mainly few hits, lots of errors, many viewers out at home.

SONG INSPIRATIONS 16

MAD offers the possible original inspirations of some popular songs, and ignores the greatest inspiration of all: money!

WOMEN IN WHISKEY ADS 19

Now that women are being introduced into whiskey ads, the double standard will be replaced by the double-vision standard...

MAD PLAYGROUNDS 24

MAD designs devices to help kids get a grip on life. If successful, we plan aids for adults in their second childhood.

WHAT TEENAGERS THINK ABOUT ... 30

An article calculated to defend teenagers from unfair adult attacks, which should earn some unfair teenage attacks on MAD.

PETER GONE 39

MAD takes a look at that TV show about a private eye who loves Jazz, and suggests a better gimmick for it, mainly a silencer.

THE BIG HOUSE BEACON 43

The Big House Class of '59 imitates a typical high school yearbook to prove the similarity of both these institutions.

THE DAILY OPTIMIST

In "The Daily Optimist," in your July issue (No. 48), under the story "Seven Magic Number for California Man," it clearly states that August is the seventh month of the year! If you dopes will remember your Latin, you'll find that the word "septem" means seven. Thus: September is the seventh month, stupids!

Fred Strohm
Brookville, Penna.

Didn't you morons ever go to school? I knew you were stupid, judging by the articles in your nauseating magazine, but I didn't think you were ignorant. In "The Daily Optimist" it states that August is the seventh month of the year. Any child can tell you August is the 8th month.

Charles E. Pierce
Belvidere, N. J.

Idiots! Scatterbrains! In the "Seven Magic Number" story in "The Daily Optimist," it states that August is the seventh month of the year. Unless somebody changed it while I wasn't looking, August is still the EIGHTH month!

Arthur Milano
Watertown, Mass.

In your July issue, "The Daily Optimist" states that August is the seventh month of the year. August is the 8th month, stupid! What were you trying to prove?

Kathy Dawson
Salem, Oregon

We were trying to prove that you shouldn't believe everything you read in the papers! —Ed.

WEIRD NAMES

Of all the strange, weird, and idiotic names you've come up with, and you've come up with some corks, I think William M. Gaines tops them all!

Richard Kapnick
Adrian, Mich.

Honest, Bill! This is a legitimate letter! —Ed.

HOW A TV SCRIPT IS BORN

In "How A Television Script is Born" (MAD #48), you mention a certain Ford which has been hit by a baseball. Then you turn around, and draw the interior of a Mercury. Clods!

Walter Rode
Portland, Conn.

I thought I'd give you a blast, and clue in your continuity department. The car you call a Ford (with a busted windshield) is a '52-'53 Mercury, according to the dashboard. Any clod should know that!

Edward S. Jacklivitch
Parma, Ohio

Ford With A Mercury Dash?

You put a 1953 Mercury dash panel in the car you tried to pass off as a Ford. What gives???

Barney Currer
Hollywood, Calif.

Wallace Wood, the artist who drew this story, is trying to find out 'what gives,' and he's looking for the guy who sold him the car! —Ed.

Boy, you stupes really goofed this time. In "How a TV Script is Born," you show "Cindy" losing her slipper from her left foot, and then you show the Prince fitting it on her right foot.

Pat Hudson
Charleston, W. Va.

In the Network Vice-President's version, Cindy drops her slipper off her left foot, and the Prince tries it on her right foot. How could it fit her?

Tim Pabian
Van Nuys, Calif.

It didn't matter, because when the Prince danced with Cindy, he realized she had two left feet! —Ed.

SKIN DIVING

You made a major goof in your article on "Skin Diving" (No. 48). In it, you state that the tank a diver uses contains "oxygen." This is very wrong! Any idiot knows a skin diver uses compressed air!

We didn't know it! So what does that make us?—Ed.

PERRY MASONMINT

Brian F. Lavin

Since when were the St. Louis Browns ever considered in the American League?—Ed.

You incorrectly stated that there were 69,432 people in Yankee Stadium. The seating capacity is only 67,203. Explain that!

AN APOLOGY

Your magazine is a necessary thing at a time when everything is a sacred cow. Keep up the good work. I enjoy every page, except: (and this is not a crackpot criticism) the recent cartoons by Don Martin. I found "The Cavemen" and "The Old Salt" offensive.

Paul Lippman
New York City

Mr. Martin apologizes for any possible bad taste in "The Cavemen" and "The Old Salt," and offers this excuse: At the time that he did them, he was feeling well. He promises it won't happen again, now that he's sick once more!—Ed.

THE FACE THAT LAUNCHED A THOUSAND SHIPS!

Yes, Helen of Troy's was "The Face That Launched a Thousand Ships"! And Alfred E. Neuman's is "The Face That SANK a Thousand Ships"! So if you want a full-color reproduction of our little "sinker," suitable for framing or wrapping fish, send 25¢ to: Dept. What-Color? c/o MAD, Room 706, 225 Lafayette St. N.Y. 12, N.Y.

GREAT MOMENTS IN MEDICINE

We realize that nothing is realistic in MAD except the laughter it produces, but your digression in combining art and beauty with disguised realism in "Great Moments in Medicine" was a masterpiece, and worthy of a prominent place in any art museum.

Thompson News Stand
Junction City, Kansas

I have visited many of the better art museums and exhibits, and have dealt in art reproduction for the past twenty years. "Presenting the Bill," in my estimation, is one of the finest pieces of art I have ever seen, and the original should be hung alongside of past and present great masters in some art center.

Everett W. Saggus
Elberton, Canada

Should Be Hung?

Your ad satire on the back cover of the July issue, "Great Moments in Medicine—Presenting The Bill," was the best yet. I showed it to a Doctor friend of mine, and he suggested that there was even a greater moment in medicine—when the bill is paid!

DISHONORABLE MENTION DEPT.

There are a great many things we can't stand about television... like for instance watching it! Another thing we can't stand is the way writers and directors keep slipping hidden plugs into their programs. These plugs usually consist of showing a certain product, mentioning a certain brand name, or making some sneaky commercial references in the dialogue. Whichever method is used, it all adds up to extra loot for them TV people, and extra headaches for us TV viewers! And it seems to us that this practice is getting worse all the time! And so, in self defense, MAD's Special Projects Editor recently created a new TV game called:

TV ROUNDUP

by Jack Goul

The battle of the ratings is in full swing again as Fall TV Programming enters its second week.

Monday night, Steve Allen's plugs out-Trendexed all competition with a resounding 31.4.

In my opinion, the victory was justified. Allen's plugs had freshness and originality, sorely needed in this day and age of mundane, predictable plugs glutting the channels.

My only objection was that some entertainment found its way into an otherwise enjoyable evening.

When will TV personalities wake up to the fact that the plug-viewing public can no longer be easily satisfied? Instead of wasting good money hiring tired plug-pluggers, they should take a lesson from Steve, and hire new writers with talent and imagination who can bring

THEN THEY DISCOVERED THE PUBLIC DREAMED OF OWNING BIG, LONG CARS . . .

SO MADISON AVE. BOYS PHOTOGRAPHED THE SMALL, DUMPY-LOOKING CARS . . .

AND THEN DETROIT BEGAN TO LENGTHEN ITS SMALL, DUMPY-LOOKING CARS . . .

NOW THEY'VE DISCOVERED THE PUBLIC DREAMS OF OWNING SMALL CARS!!!

SO HERE'S OUR ADVICE:

For the past few summers here in New York City, members of the casts of Broadway shows have formed teams and played baseball against each other in Central Park. This "Broadway Show League", as it is known, has proven very successful . . . and MAD feels it will prompt similar leagues to spring up within other forms of entertainment. F'rinstance, television! Can't you just picture to yourself that bright and sunny summer day when . . .

NBC PLAYS CBS in THE TV BASEBALL LEAGUE

ART—MORT DRUCKER STORY—ARNIE KOGEN

Hi, everybody! This is Mel Allen, speaking to you from Network Stadium where, today, a strong NBC nine meets powerful CBS for the Championship of the TV Baseball League. We've just had the National Anthem played by Ray Block and his Orchestra, sung by the McGuire Sisters, and danced by Darvas and Julia. So let's go down on the field as Umpire Lawrence Welk calls managers Marx of NBC and Silvers of CBS to homeplate . . .

All right-a, gentlemen. We want to get on with the game-a, so let's have the batting orders-a!

Listen to him! Listen to those golden tones, the resonance, the authority in his voice! And the way you look, Sir . . . resplendent in your glorious blue suit! Why, the Hall of Fame Committee should be horsewhipped for not building a separate shrine, just for you! And they dared call Bill Klem the "King of Umpires"! Here's my line-up, Sir . . . and I know you'll call them my way!

The last time I heard so much talking was when the Vassar debating team took on Barnard. Here's my line-up, Welk. Just make sure you say the secret words: "NBC wins!"

All right, gang! I saw their line-up, and it's weak . . . nothing! They miss the power they had when Kate Smith was with them. The game is yours! Just let the master guide you! Now let's get out there on the double . . . Eeebaah!

But, what about me! You never start me!

Quiet! How many times must I tell you . . . no amateurs!

Sullivan's pitching for CBS. Berle, get up there and see if you can make a hit! If you do, you'll amaze us. According to Trendex, you haven't made a hit in 39 appearances!

Don't worry, Groucho! I'll wow 'em!

Hey, that's my bat!

Get used to it, Paar! Berle's been stealing our bats for years! Never gets a new one of his own!

Milton Berle, the first batter for NBC, steps to the plate. Sullivan winds up—pitches—and it's high—Whoops!

That was his really big one!

Good shew, Ed! Good shew!

Berle walks — and Steve Allen comes up. He checks signals from 3rd base coach Kathryn Murray—

Let's see ... take one, then two, then ... cha-cha-cha???

Allen is hit by a pitch, and limps to first, moving Berle up to second. The next batter, George Gobel, takes two called strikes. The crowd, angered by Welk's calls, throws pop bottles at him, and time is suddenly called ... by the catcher, Jack Benny—

That's two cents ... four cents ... six ... and here's a nickel deposit bottle ...

He can't interrupt-a the game like that-a!

Forgive him, Sir! He was carried away! You'll have what's rightfully yours! Benny, give him those bottles!

And speaking of bottles, look in your locker after the game, sir. You'll find a case of Champagne there ... a small token from my squad. We know you'll feel at home with all those bubbles!

The game resumes, and George Gobel strikes out. With Ralph Edwards due up next, it looks like Marx is sending in Arthur Murray to pinch hit —

Sullivan, unnerved by Murray's appearance, pitches four straight balls, and the bases are full, setting the stage for Jack Paar —

I know you can't hit, Murray, but maybe you can stare Ed Sullivan into giving you a walk. You may think this is a ridiculous move ... but I've watched you dance, and you make some ridiculous moves yourself!

They're all loaded up, Jack ... just like on our show!

Couldn't we take time out for a commercial here?

Paar takes the first pitch and sends a blooper to Eve Arden, who touches third for the double play. As Jack walks away, the crowd views an unusual sight for a ballfield, but an old one for TV —

Gleason, the first batter for CBS, hits a tremendous blast to the center field wall. It's chased by Eddie Fisher, who finally retrieves it, and throws it to the infield. It's relayed to the base—and it's going to be close. Gleason slides—and—

Every now and then, we read about some well-meaning group burying a “time capsule” in the ground. This “capsule” is always crammed with all sorts of dandy things that represent our Modern World . . . the idea being that when future generations dig it up, they’ll know just how wonderful we really were! And we say this is ridiculous! We say if you’re gonna bury things, bury the things that should be buried, and then make sure they’re left buried! Mainly, there are plenty of things in our Modern World that we could happily do without . . . like f’rinstance the things we could get rid of once and for all in . . .

COULD HAVE DANCED ALL NIGHT CLAIMS MARATHON CUP WINNER

WEST FLINTLOCK, Md.—The finals of the West Flintlock Annual Dance Marathon were won last night by Pauline Sprong and Chester McScurvy. Mr. McScurvy collapsed immediately after winning the contest, but Miss Sprong finished in amazingly good condition.

"I could have danced all night", she stated twice to reporters, after accepting the cup, "and still have begged for more!"

Miss Sprong denied reports that toward the end, she was too exhausted to do more than go through the motions. "Not true!", she said. "Why I could have spread my wings and done a thousand things I'd never done before. Only I was too busy holding up Chester!"

Miss Sprong could offer no explanation of her love of dance marathons. "I'll never know", she admitted, "what makes them so exciting. It's just that all at once my heart takes flight when I'm competing in one!"

The pretty winner was quick to credit her partner with inspiring their record-breaking performance. "I only know", she said, "when he began to dance with me that I could have danced all night to win, if I'd had to!"

DEAR AMY: I am 35 years old and still a bachelor. My mother keeps nagging at me to get married. She says the reason I'm still single is that I'm too

 darn particular about women. I keep telling her the girl
 that I marry
 will have to be as soft and as mother can't

 why I want the girl I call my own from Cologne. Tell me, Amy, am

 I wrong in wanting a kittenish
 German Fraulein whose nails will be polished, who'll wear gar-denias in her hair, and who'll purr whenever I sit next to her?
 Or should I give up trying to find looking, and some enchanted evening you will see a stranger across a crowded room who may be with the very girl you're dreaming of.

 And somehow, you'll know even then that somewhere you'll meet her again if you play your cards right. So don't waste time when this happens. Fly to her side, and make her your own. My free booklet "How to Make German Frauleins Your Own" will help you in this task. It would be unfortunate for you to marry a girl you don't really love. Rather than make a mistake you'll regret all through your life, it would be better to dream on alone.

Several months ago, the powers that be in Advertising decided to permit the use of women in whiskey ads. Of course, things will probably go slow in this new and touchy area. At first, women will only be used as props, standing around looking pretty. But as time goes on, and people get used to the idea, the fair sex will be shown taking a nip or two. Here, then, is MAD's idea of what the future holds, as Madison Avenue introduces...

Wit flashed when Mark Twain spoke and his favorite Kentucky bourbon, Old Crow, flowed during the convivial evenings at his favorite tavern. Except for the time that famed Prohibitionist started hacking up the place. Then, he wasn't very witty. In fact, he was downright abusive!

Yes, in the past, a few women like Carrie Nation disapproved of Old Crow. But today, more and more women are singing its praise. Of course, they may still hack up the place, but only because they get loaded on this famous Kentucky bourbon.

It's about time that those namby-pamby Madison Avenue Martini-Sippers got around to letting us women take our rightful place in these whiskey ads. For years, this old fraud has been passing himself off as the big wheel in Kentucky bourbon. Well, I'm mighty glad to set the record straight. The trouble with kids today is: they get the wrong conception of what life's all about. They think life is all play, and the world is just one big playground. CHANGING MEANINGS FOR FUN & PROFIT

It's a common practice among sly Broadway and Hollywood producers to pick out certain words from a panning newspaper review, substitute dots for the other words they ignore, and thereby cleverly turn a pan review into a rave review. For example, here's a review which blasts a new film. The producer of the movie underlines certain words . . .

"The Mighty And The Sick"

A Bitter Disappointment

BY BOSWELL CHOWDER

Copyright 1959, Alfred E. Neuman Syndicate

Seldom does a film reviewer have an urge to smash a producer in the nose, and hit the director in the eye. But that's exactly how I felt after seeing "The Mighty and The Sick" at the Cameo last night. It was so deeply disappointing that I kept moving from one seat to another to keep from falling asleep.

Stone Sfortz gives a superb imitation of a spastic marionette as he stumbles through his performance. On screen, he is as expressive as a Mongoloid idiot, and if he accepts his salary check for this role, he is a bigger bandit than I thought he was.

Dolores Fingerhut was never so miscast. Frankly, Bernie the Wonder Horse looked far more appealing.

One thing is sure: they should fire Oscar Pivnick for writing some of the poorest material ever seen on film.

Under no circumstances should you see it! I'll say it again: under no circumstances should you see it! And again: under no circumstances should you see it! and again . . .

The producer then takes all the underlined words, separates them by dots, and combines them to form the following blurb which he uses to exploit the film in newspaper ads and on posters

THE MIGHTY AND THE SICK

"The Mighty and The Sick" . . . a . . . smash . . . hit . . . deeply . . . moving . . . Stone Sfortz gives a superb . . . performance . . . as . . . a . . . Mongoloid . . . bandit . . . Dolores Fingerhut was never . . . more . . . appealing . . . sure . . . fire . . . Oscar . . . material . . . see it . . . again . . . and again . . . and again . . .

Gentlemen:

Please place a classified ad in the paper for me. You may use the information in this letter as a guide.

I have a dog I would like to sell. He is a big, ugly animal, with huge ears, and he has been living in my home against my wishes for five months. He's got 23 breeds in him, and we call him "Doberman" because he facially resembles that member of Sgt. Bilko's platoon. He likes to eat sulphur, and since he's been here, the house is matchless. He's always falling down the cellar steps and rolling in the coal bin, which gives him a black coat to go with his natural brown, white, gray, green, red, and cerise one.

The police said they would fine me if I let him out, and I think he'd be dangerous in a house with children. His sire was a champion Chicken-Killer.

A friend of mine with the American Kennel Club registered surprise when he saw this monster. He said the mutt was so hideous, he couldn't believe it was real. Sometimes, I don't believe it myself. We've innoculated the dog for every possible disease, but he gets them anyway. The only one he's missed so far has been the measles. Please place an ad and get rid of him for me. Everything he's touched in the house is broken.

Oh-oh! I've just noticed he's getting some red blotches now!

Very truly yours,
Marvin Skroog.

My Vacation

My vacation this year was a very interesting one. I did not expect it to be so interesting. Usually, I am against going to the mountains. But when my Mother and Father took me to the Catskills, I found the country to be very pleasant. I enjoyed the lake and everything. It was nice. We visited refreshment stands on the way for ice cream and sodas.

One day, my Father said, "Let us go to town while Seymour takes his afternoon nap. We will bring back a nice book for him." I had fun while they were gone.

That evening, they returned with "Up From Slavery" by Booker T. Washington. It was a very interesting book. I enjoyed it. I never knew Booker T. Washington was such a good student.

The next day, my Father and Mother took me to a movie in town. Of course, we had a good time. We saw the Marx Brothers. How I laughed.

I believe we would be better off next summer if we went to a smaller hotel, though. This place was so large that I lost my notebook. I think I left it under a Red Bench in the Lobby. I also lost my ruler somewhere.

My vacation was very interesting.

Seymour Getzoff.

During an election campaign, one nominee digging for dirt on his opponent comes across this composition written 25 years ago for a sixth year grammar school class.

And a week later, this crafty, unscrupulous nominee gives a hair-raising political speech:

I have in my hand a damaging piece of evidence. It is a document written and signed by my opponent in this election. Let me quote some excerpts from this shocking document: "I am against the country . . . and everything it . . . stands for . . . Let us . . . bring back . . . Slavery . . . Washington was . . . a . . . student . . . of . . . Marx . . . I believe we would be better off . . . under a Red . . . ruler . . ."

THIS IS NOT TRUE!

ART-BOB CLARKE

somethin' to say about
"secret ingredients"!

Actually, teenage girls think about important things like national, international, scientific and cultural problems of today, such as:

1 SEGREGATION

A teenage girl thinks about segregation in schools, for it's no fun in classes where boys and girls are separated.

2 AUTOMATION

A teenage girl worries about automation because she would hate to see somebody invent a machine to replace a boy.

3 ELECTRONICS

A teenage girl is interested in electronics because where else but on TV can she see all those cute boy singers?

4 NATURAL RESOURCES

A teenage girl is anxious about the development of her natural resources so all the boys will begin noticing her.

5 COMMUNISM

A teenage girl is opposed to Communism because she'd hate living where boys think more of their tractors than of girls.

6 UNITED NATIONS

A teenage girl supports the United Nations because she knows that boys from other countries can be cute, too.

7 POLITICS

A teenage girl is interested in politics because recently there have been really cute fellers running for office.

8 THE ATOMIC BOMB

A teenage girl is concerned about the atomic bomb as a weapon of destruction since it could wipe out all boys.

STORY-DAVE BERG

THIS IS NOT TRUE!

Have you noticed? Every product these days has a "secret ingredient"!

Actually, teenage boys think about important things like national, international, scientific and cultural problems of today, such as:

1 SUMMIT CONFERENCES

A teenage boy thinks about summit conferences like the kind held with girls in the balconies of movie theaters.

2 UNDEVELOPED AREAS

A teenage boy is interested in undeveloped areas like building up his biceps and chest to impress the girls.

3 MARKET RESEARCH

A teenage boy knows market research can tell him which supermarket check-out girl is the best bet for a date.

4 MUTUAL FUNDS

A teenage boy investigates the possibilities of mutual funds, which means getting the girl to go "Dutch treat."

5 THE DRAFT

A teenage boy looks out for the draft, because if he can get his girl in one, she'll want him to keep her warm.

6 LIBERTY

A teenage boy is concerned with liberty, especially how much he can take with a girl he's got a heavy date with.

7 SPACE EXPLORATION

A teenage boy often indulges in space exploration, which means finding a new place to park and neck with his girl.

8 THE ATOMIC BOMB

A teenage boy is concerned with the atomic bomb as a weapon of destruction since it could wipe out all girls.

I Married Beneath My Station!

I knew that Irving came from a poor family, but I never realized what a difference it would mean to our marriage!

Because when it came time to make the arrangements, he was too broke to hire a hall!

And if you think it's a pleasure getting married under the platform of an I.R.T. Subway Station, you should try it some time. Whenever an express would come in, we'd have to stop the ceremony and wait for (Continued)

I tried to fight him, but I was too weak . . . and . . .

He Forced Me To Live In Shame

I will always love Sidney, even after what he made me do. And maybe, someday, my love for him will let me forget . . . and forgive. But not now. Not when the memory is so vivid. So awful.

The memory of those horrible days when Sidney forced me to live in Shame! Because Shame, Mississippi, is the one town I can't stand. There's the glue factory down by the river, and the Moxie bottling plant over on the North side (Continued)

Well, I got a theory about them "secret ingredients"!

I knew he would never marry me, even though . . .

HE WORSHIPPED EVERY HAIR ON MY HEAD

It was an impossible situation, and it was driving me out of my mind. Yet, there was nothing I could do about it. I knew that Herman would never marry me, even though he worshipped every hair on my head!

Because the rest of me, he hated! He used to get nauseous every time he came near me! And who's gonna marry a girl he can't stand, just because she's got a healthy head of hair!

I remember how Herman's bald head would shine as he ran the fingers of one hand through my hair, while he held his nose with the fingers of the other. (Continued)

TYPICAL PROVOCATIVE TITLES THAT WE FELL FOR

I can look back over our life together, and say...

Our Marriage Is A Honeymoon After 35 Years

I am writing my story in hopes that it will serve as an inspiration to all young married couples. Because my marriage is a honeymoon after 35 years! Which is about time! I mean, during those first thirty-four years, it was one big battle after another! And between battles, it was nothing but aggravation, aggravation, aggravation! What happened to make Herbert change his mind about me, I'll never know. But on our 35th Anniversary, he came home with flowers, and gave me a big kiss (Continued)

It didn't take me very long to discover...

Our Marriage Was A Mistake From The Beginning

Before I married Emile, I was blindly in love with him. The fact that he was always forgetting things didn't seem important. It was only afterwards that I discovered our marriage was a mistake from the beginning! Mainly, because Emile had forgotten to take out a marriage license! After that, things got progressively worse. On our honeymoon, he forgot to buy a plane ticket for me. When he finally got back from Niagara Falls, he even forgot who I was. And when I stabbed him, he actually forgot to bleed! (Continued)

I realize... NOW... that...

Happiness Is Just A Guy Named "JOE"

The whole trouble is: my husband's name is "Sol"! Joe is the name of the guy I was going with before I married Sol. Joe is the guy I should have married! I know that now!

Ever since Joe won the Irish Sweepstakes, I've known it!

If I'd only waited another three weeks before saying "yes" to that no-good bum, Sol, I'd be rolling in dough (Contd.)

Theory being: The "secret ingredients" in products are really other products!

How will I ever live it down, when...

The Whole Town Knows About Our Affair

I can't walk down the streets of our town these days. Because I can't bear to face people... to see them turn away... to hear them whisper.

Yes, the whole town knows about our affair. It was in all the papers. The whole ugly mess, described right down to the last ugly detail.

And the funny thing is: if it hadn't rained that day, it probably would have been the best doggone Picnic-Barbecue the Ladies Auxiliary ever ran!

But since I was President, they blame the whole thing on me. You'd think that I ordered the rain personally (Continued)

Television's most successful Private Eye these days is a new-comer named Peter Gone. Mr. Gone is sophisticated, literate, a lover of cool jazz, and an impeccable Ivy League dresser. He has enjoyed smooth sailing on TV for months, Go right ahead! And why don't you start from the beginning! What happened when you woke up?

Well, I went into the bathroom... accompanied by my jazzy bathroom background music... and I started to shave... accompanied by my jazzy shaving music... and for the first time, the darn music annoyed me!

You say this jazz music follows you all over?

Yes! You see, it's my trademark... like Mike Hammer always belts women... and Charlie Chan has a large family... you know! As a matter of fact, it's playing a jazzy psychiatric background now! Can't you hear it?

It's for you, Mr. Gone!

Oh, that must be my TV Producer! I told him I would be here!

Hello... yes... this is Pete! Yes, I'm all right! I'm sorry about the mess I've made! It's that background music! It's been driving me crazy today for some reason! Yes... yes... you WHAT? No wonder!! Yes, sir! I'll change into an Ivy League suit right away! Of course, slim tie! Button-down shirt, too! Trim my crew cut! Yes, sir! And thanks for calling! What a relief!

Let's face it! Today, a high school isn't much different from a prison. Bells ring announcing different activities, there are guards in the halls, students gather in cliques to secretly plot how to escape by cutting classes, relatives come to visit (when cutters are caught), weapons in the form of crib notes are cleverly smuggled into exams, etc. The only difference we can see is: high schools have yearbooks, and prisons don't! We think it's only fair that the graduating inmates of prisons all over the country are entitled to the same permanent remembrance of the best years of their lives. For example:

ALMA MATER

Alma Mater, Alma Mater,
To your praise our voices ring ring.
San Quentin, Alcatraz can't touch you,
And we prefer you to Sing Sing.
We love your ivy-covered cell blocks,
The peace your Solitary gives,
We walk your yard in autumn sunsets
Making mess spoons into shivs.
Alma Mater, Alma Mater,
Unto you we raise a cup,
Of all the pens throughout the nation,
Yours is the river we want to go up
Up, up, up...
Yours is the river we want to go up.

A MESSAGE FROM OUR WARDEN

TO THE BIG HOUSE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1959

It has been our job here at Big House to teach you right from wrong. We have attempted to impress you with the words of Buggus Bunnus, the famous Latin scholar, who said: "Stratus winnus; lorbrakus losus; paisus stratus shutus!" Which means: "Straight-shooters always win, law-breakers always lose, so it pays to shoot straight!"

At last you are ready to go out into the world. As is customary, I now give you each a suit of clothes and $10. You are now good, fine, honest men. And now, I must say good-bye. I must re-deposit the rest of this $10,000 dollars I drew from the vault, and ... hmmm...

I could have sworn I had the money in my pocket a few minutes ago...

A MESSAGE FROM OUR ADMISSIONS OFFICER

TO THE BIG HOUSE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1959

You are now the Big House Graduating Class of 1964, if you don't try anything else like you just pulled on the Warden. Please remove all your clothing, and leave your valuables at the desk...

For his parting shot, Mr. Martin (a nervous wreck from his financial dealings with MAD), describes the night his wife presented him with

THE NEW CHAIR

It's a new electric "Vibra-Lax" easy chair, George. It relaxes jittery nerves!

This handy three-page booklet says, "You can have the calm, steady nerves you need, without harmful drugs or tranquilizers!"

Pretty good, eh, George? What do you think . . . ?

Sounds O.K. to me! Plug 'er in . . .

Nothing stops it - not even power brakes-

THE "CRASH PROOF" BODY BY FISHEY

You buy safety when you buy a new Body by Fishey—safety that can be measured in rate of climb.

For only a Fishey body gives you the exclusive accident-prevention feature of flight.

The secret? Balsa wood bolts hold the Fishey Body to the chassis!

Yes, when you're out driving your new car with its Fishey Body, and an accident becomes suddenly imminent, all you have to do is apply them power brakes!

The chassis stops on a dime, but your "Crash Proof" Fishey Body takes off, sails into space, and keeps on going.

You avoid the problem of replacing crushed grilles and dented fenders. You avoid the problem of paying costly repair bills. And you avoid the problem created by the accident itself.

The only thing you can't avoid is the problem of getting back down to the ground.

We haven't been able to figure out this one yet ourselves!

Only the "G*M Five" give you the Breakaway BODY BY FISHEY

THE FINISHING TOUCH

You may have thought all along that this is our trademark. Well it is not! This is the magnificent 18th Century coach we've got waiting for the first driver who avoided an accident in a Fishey Body to come back to Earth.
